

A photograph of a waterfall cascading over a stone wall. The water is in motion, creating a soft, blurred effect. The stone wall is composed of large, irregular blocks. In the foreground, the ground is cracked and dry, suggesting a lack of water. The overall scene is a contrast between the flowing water and the parched earth.

Gesù disse:
“Chi beve l’acqua
che Io gli darò
non avrà mai più
sete in eterno”

Giov. 4:14
